At each step in my career, I've created change by learning a business, its customers, its constraints; conceiving and communicating a compelling strategic vision; and delivering a new experience via product and product thinking. I'm looking for an opportunity to apply my product and leadership skills on consumer-facing products and services.

WORK EXPERIENCE

Senior Product Manager

Frontiers Media SA - (February 2022 - March 2024) -  Vienna, Austria

Peer reviewers make scientific publishing go, but they're overwhelmed with invitations and current platforms don't support their work. I built a platform that enabled Frontiers to attract reviewers without sending emails and an MVP reviewing platform to engage users.

- Conceived, prototyped, user tested, and delivered a platform (Frontiers Discover) to transform Frontiers's peer review invitation system.
- Discover attracted tens of thousands of users, boosted invitation conversion 6x (to ~18%), shortened review time by ~7 days, and improved the overall user experience at Frontiers.
- Co-created a vision and strategy to modernize Frontiers's aging peer review platform, the heart of its business.
- Rallied support for the new reviewing platform across the company, following years of stagnation, and served as lead product manager for implementation of its MVP.
- Led 3 cross-functional teams (~30 colleagues) – product managers; UX designers and researchers; frontend and backend engineers; architects; and other business stakeholders.
- Carried out market analysis, organized design sprints, conducted user research, constructed interactive prototypes in Axure, and developed product strategy aligned with Frontiers's business goals and the needs of 1.5 million users.

Senior Manager, Publications

Helmholtz Munich - (June 2019 - January 2022) -  Munich, Germany

German research institutions are generally unhappy with the costs, and constraints, of scientific publishing. Leveraging the emerging trend of preprints, I created an MVP for a two-sided market to transform scientific communication.

- Created product vision for a two-sided marketplace for the exchange and validation of scientific work.
- Conducted user research and validation across Helmholtz's 19 research centers.
- Recruited and product managed external contractors to develop an MVP 'preprint review' platform, leveraging bioRxiv.
- Created web design for the platform, implemented the design using Tailwind CSS, and contributed Javascript fixes and minor functionality.

Senior Publisher / Publisher

Elsevier GmbH - (October 2014 - June 2019) -  Berlin, Germany

Researchers in Africa had a problem: communicating their science was difficult. Following extensive discussions with researchers and stakeholders – including in  Ghana,  Kenya,  Rwanda,  Senegal, and  Ethiopia – I created Scientific African in partnership with the Next Einstein Forum.

- Developed, built a partnership for and published Scientific African, a critically valuable source of scientific information for, and by, researchers from Africa.
- Launched Scientific African with Elsevier's CEO at the Next Einstein Forum Global Gathering in Kigali, Rwanda in March 2018. Covered in CBC Radio, Die Zeit, Frankfurter Allgemeine Zeitung, The Guardian, Le Monde, and Science.
- Managed a portfolio of Food Science and Oceanography journals, with annual revenues of $16,000,000 USD and an annual operating budget of $1,000,000 USD.
- Actively managed scores of Editors-in-Chief from dozens of countries, helping them achieve growth and quality targets for their journals by providing technical, publishing, and strategic support.

Founder & Publisher

Frisch & Co. Ebooks - (September 2012 - May 2016) -  Berlin, Germany

At heart, I'm a reader, especially of literature from outside the English-speaking world. I founded Frisch & Co. to publish translated fiction by taking advantage of the efficiencies inherent in the then-emerging ebook market.

- Created unique publishing partnerships with Companhia das Letras, Suhrkamp Verlag, Atlas Contact, Edizioni Nottetempo, Otava, Natur & Kultur, and Editorial Anagrama.
- Secured translation funding from  German;  Austrian;  Dutch;  Finnish;  Brazilian;  Italian; and  Argentinian arts organizations.
- Secured ebook distribution on Amazon Kindle, Apple Books, Google Play Books, and other outlets through Faber Factory.
- My authors included Anna Kim, Joaquín Pérez Azaústre, Carlos Busqued, Hanna Bervoets, Petri Tamminen, and Elisa Ruotolo, amongst others.

Co-founder & Editor

Open Letter Books - (January 2007 - August 2012) -  Rochester, NY, USA

With two colleagues, I co-founded Open Letter Books at the University of Rochester. We built one of the leading publishers of translated fiction in the English-reading world.

- Acquired and edited ~50 book-length translations; designed Open Letter's book covers; and coded a CMS for the press's website using Ruby on Rails.
- My authors included Dubravka Ugresic, Alejandro Zambra, Jan Kjærstad, Quim Monzó, Ingrid Winterbach, Jakov Lind, Jerzy Pilch, and Mathias Énard, amongst others.

Editor

Dalkey Archive Press - (July 2006 - December 2006) -  Bloomington, IL, USA

Audiobook Coordinator / Assistant Editor
